2019-2020 Sponsorship Packet

CLEVELAND STATE LAW REVIEW

Established in 1952, Cleveland State Law Review (CSLR) is Cleveland-Marshall College of Law's flagship legal journal. CSLR is a student-run organization that publishes four issues each school year. Each issue consists of articles written by professors, judges, and other professionals from around the world who comment on and analyze particular areas of law. Each issue also includes "notes" written by current CSLR student members.

Although the journal is smaller than many other law reviews, CSLR makes a significant impact in the academic community. CSLR has published both prominent national figures and distinguished local scholars and judges, including Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Noam Chomsky, and Northern District of Ohio Judges Donald Nugent and Christopher Boyko. In the month of July 2019 alone, more than 10,000 CSLR publications were downloaded from Cleveland State University's Engaged Scholarship website.

WHY WE SEEK SPONSORS

A decline in law school enrollment has drastically decreased CSLR's funding from Cleveland State University in recent years. As a result, CSLR members fund a majority of the organization's operations. After enduring a highly competitive competition to make the journal, each student is required to pay $100 in annual dues simply to be a part of the organization. These dues, which students often pay using student loans, are in addition to the countless hours the students spend working for the organization by editing and revising articles and helping with fundraising and events.

HOW SPONSORSHIP FUNDS WILL HELP

Many law journals around the country do not require their members to pay any fee to join. CSLR seeks sponsors for the 2019-2020 school year to ensure members can develop the skills necessary to be successful in the legal field by immersing themselves in scholarship and fostering relationships with past and present members without membership adding to a member's economic burden.

In addition to helping reduce each student's annual fee, CSLR will utilize sponsorship funds in a variety of ways to improve the organization overall. Additional funding will allow CSLR to acquire new technology, plan more events to connect students with CSLR alumni, renovate a workspace that is more than 30 years overdue, and retain more influential authors for publication.
